Mr. Henri Jégu, Vice President of the American Library in Paris, came to see me this morning to tell me about the progress being made by that institution. It is being particularly effective in its branch office work.

I spent a considerable time with Messrs. Rumelsine and Fisher going over [redacted] security matters.

Walter Donnelly came in. He has just returned home. He believes it of great importance that the United States Government appoint a new High Commissioner to Germany as quickly as possible.

We had lunch with the John Hammonds and tonight I went to the annual meeting and dinner of the Alibi Club.
